

Good Morning Damascus helps businesses network

The Damascus Boring Observer

The Good Morning Damascus group is getting a head of steam. The group who meets monthly shares community information and gets a public safety tip from the Boring Fire District.

At the June meeting, Alice Lasher from Boring Fire explained how to prevent electrical mishaps. Bob Rykken gave a presentation on Damascus Day in the Park and Julie Wagner introduced the Damascus/Boring Observer newspaper. Dee Wescott and Dan O'Dell brought attendees up to speed on the Urban Growth Boundary expansion and the activities of the Committee for the Future of Damascus. Featured speaker and sponsor of the morning pastries was Pastor Calvin Waetzig from Christ the Vine Lutheran Church. Pastor Waetzig gave the group an overview of the programs offered for children which include a pre-school, summer day camp and vacation bible school.

The group will meet at the Damascus Fire Station at 7:30 am on the second Friday of each month for a few more months and then plans to move the meeting to various businesses. Good Morning Damascus is an excellent opportunity for business owners, schools and churches to network and share information. For information contact Dan O'Dell at 503.663.4638.
